

BLACKLINE

SGL-standard container conductive BL

The conductive SGL-standard container from the Blackline range is appreciated by professionals because of its robustness and dimensional stability. It is precisely this stable design and the almost indestructible material that makes the Blackline container an extremely durable and sustainable all-rounder in ESD-protected applications.

Applications

Blackline stackable containers are extremely well-suited for the consignment, storage and protection of electronic components.

Special types

All non-stock items are marked thus and available on request only.

